Many Good Players Sure to Be Developed on Gridiron This Season, Despite "Big Three's" Desertion of the Sport.

HE usual "class" in football may be lacking this year, but the number of games played among colleges gives promise of the depment of some good men. While "Big Three" are busy explaining their military work interferes it isn't worth while to play footbal at all, some of the smaller college give out fully as clear and convincing a statement from the other side of the pestion. They say that even though sey don't produce any great teams
